Site Testing

Initially, I compared my website on the chrome browser versus the firefox browser. To be honest, I can not seem to find any differences. The spacing, fonts, and functionality remained the same from chrome to firefox. Even the form looks exactly the same! I did notice however, that the “extend” corner for the comments box has more lines in Firefox than in Chrome. As for the website in Microsoft Edge, everything looks quite the same as well. One difference I noticed is that Edge and Firefox allow me to scroll a little further past the footer than Chrome does. Other than that, everything looks the same, even spacing between elements.
